Selection Team at Save the Children Denmark

Dear Selection Team,

Since I finished my Masters Degree in International Cooperation and Development, I have dedicated most of my time to developing skills such as facilitating learning processes for youth and adults (online and face-to-face), programme management and entrepreneurship, communication, representation, and event management, all of it rooted in the pursuit of a kinder and more sustainable society for all, especially our children and youth.

In my experiences in fragile contexts in India, Ghana, Spain or Argentina, I have learned and integrated innovative methods and ways of working in those areas, which have allowed me to develop suitable skills for the position of Adolescents and Youth Engagement Officer at your great organization.

I am passionate about facilitating/ co-creating innovative initiatives for youth empowerment. For 10 years I have been traveling to India to successfully support Manav Sadhna's youth projects, co-starting the Soccer Program and empowering kids to be leaders in their own communities. Recently I have also been co-piloting on-line programmes like Laddership and Kindfulness, innovative approaches for youth empowerment that have proven very transformative.

Throughout these experiences, I have learned to collaborate with others successfully and develop the end to end skills required to implement such projects. Doing so in a multicultural setting has been a great gift for me, and now, being in a time of personal transition, I would love to continue doing that in such a great organization as Save the Children, a place where I feel I can keep learning and find ways to serve our youth.

While reading Save the Children mission, I feel a great resonance with my values and mission as well, and while reading this job description I feel especially connected with the idea of co-piloting innovative approaches and the YIL trainings, all of which can add tremendous value for the young leadership we need in this world, especially in fragile areas. For these reasons and more, I would love to support the beautiful work Save the Children Denmark is doing and serve the goals we share with dedication.

In hope we have the chance to meet soon,

Best regards,

Joserra G.
